ANSWER KEY

8. Yes. In California v. Greenwood (1988), the Court ruled that a trash bag at the curb is “readily accessible to animals, children, scavengers, snoops, and other members of the public,” so there was no expectation of privacy.

9. Yes. In California v. Ciraolo (1986), the Court held that a police fly-over was “nonintrusive” and “took place within public navigable airspace,” therefore there was no reasonable expectation of privacy.

Unit 8: The Bill of Rights and Liberty

LESSON 1: HOW DOES THE CONSTITUTION PROTECT LIBERTY?

Handout A: Background Essay - How Does the Constitution Protect Liberty?
1. The First Amendment guarantees that you can associate with whomever you like. The Third and Fourth Amendments promise that the government cannot intrude into your home arbitrarily and without legal cause. The Fifth Amendment assures that you can keep silent if accused of a crime. The Founders believed that these rights should be protected so they decided to list them in the Bill of Rights.

2. Due process rights protect personal liberty in that they check government power, and it entitles all citizens to fair treatment by the government. Due process rights that are protected include: the right to a speedy, public trial by a jury; no person shall be tried for the same crime twice; no person should be forced to testify against himself; no person shall be deprived of life, liberty, or property; and all persons should be equally protected under the law.

Handout B: Pierce v. Society of Sisters (1925)
1. The Act required that all students attend public school through eighth grade. Private and parochial schools were concerned that they would lose students, their jobs, and their businesses because of this law. They also believed that it was a parent’s right to choose where the student went to school.

2. The First Amendment could have been discussed in this case, too. It could have been argued that the state of Oregon was infringing upon the freedom of religion.

LESSON 2: WHAT IS THE SCOPE OF THE BILL OF RIGHTS?

Handout A: Background Essay – What Is the Scope of the Bill of Rights?
1. The Ninth Amendment ensures that the rights actually listed in the Bill of Rights are not assumed to be more important than rights not listed. The Ninth Amendment does not list any specific rights, but it raises many possibilities. It has been read to protect all natural rights not specifically listed in the First through Eighth Amendments.

2. In Griswold v. Connecticut (1965), the Court determined that the Ninth Amendment protects privacy within marriage. The Court cited the First, Third, Fourth, and Fifth Amendments as creating a “zone of privacy.”

Unit 9: The Bill of Rights and Federalism

Lesson 1: What is a Federal Republic?

Handout A: Background Essay - What is a Federal Republic?

1. Federalism is the principle that people delegate certain powers to the national government in the Constitution. All those powers not delegated to the national government remain with the states and the people.

2. All those powers not delegated to the national government remain with the states and the people.

3. The Fourteenth Amendment limited the types of laws states could pass. Eventually, the Supreme Court began applying Bill of Rights limitations to state governments via the Fourteenth Amendment. The Seventeenth Amendment ended state representation in the U.S. Congress.
